One mitzvot I have experienced is remembrance. 1735. On my bat mitzvah I did a project called "remember US." This is when you get the name of a child who perished in the holocaust, and never get to have a bar/bat mitzvah, so you remember them at yours. I also went to the Museum of Jewish Heritage with our hebrew school class. We also experienced remembrance by listening to two holocaust survivors tell their stories, and also looked at the exhibits. If we don't tell the stories of the Holocaust, then people might say that it never happened. It is very important to pass down stories and tell them to future generations.
